OUR MISSION

Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor (SHM&R) was founded in April of 2004 with the goal of providing outstanding legal services in focused fields of practice at competitive rates. All of the Firm's named partners practiced together for many years at a pre-eminent downtown New Orleans law firm where they honed their skills in a variety of areas of litigation, including insurance coverage and defense, banking, transportation, professional liability, maritime, toxic tort, products liability, environmental, worker's compensation and construction defect, as well as the general practice associated with all of those forms of litigation. The attorneys that make up the SHM&R team have a vast amount of experience practicing in both the State and Federal Courts of Louisiana. They are also actively involved with the Claims and Litigation Management Alliance, the Defense Research Institute and the Louisiana Association of Defense Counsel.

SHM&R attorneys are, first and foremost, Trial Attorneys. Every case is handled with one goal in mind: successful resolution on the merits. Each and every case is prepared as if it will proceed to trial. The attorneys of SHM&R have been successful in over 90% of the matters that have proceeded to trial. Cognizant of litigation risks and costs, SHM&R routinely explore alternative dispute resolution, assess business considerations and other risks to the client, and ultimately resolve the vast majority of cases amicably prior to trial. The attorneys' trial experience as lead counsel in both jury and bench trials is one key to the success of their individual practices.

As discussed on the following pages, SHM&R attorneys routinely and successfully handle a wide range of practice areas and continually strive to provide excellent services to their clients in a cost effective manner.

BANKING LITIGATION

Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor regularly represents both national and state banking associations in commercial litigation in federal and state courts throughout the State of Louisiana. It handles retail banking litigation including disputes between banks and their customers involving negligence, unauthorized withdrawals, faithless bookkeepers, electronic funds transfers, credit cards, negotiable instruments, deposit account agreements, trusts, and commercial disputes under the Uniform Commercial Code. The Firm also represents financial institutions with regard to issues of privacy, fraud, forgery, conversion, breach of fiduciary duty, R.I.C.O., and theft. The Firm has defended banking and financial institutions in class actions as well as in FINRA and NASD arbitrations involving securities. The Firm is a member of the Bank Counsel Section of the Louisiana Bankers Association.

CONSTRUCTION DEFECT

Salley Hite Mercer & Resor regularly represents general contractors and subcontractors in construction defect and faulty workmanship claims brought by government, commercial and residential claimants. The Firm's attorneys have handled litigation with issues involving roofing, windows, concrete, soils/foundation failure, waterproofing, electrical and plumbing. The attorneys who practice in this area include a Louisiana licensed General Contractor as well as several others who have, through years of experience in this line of litigation, developed knowledge of the technical aspects and contract documents, all of which helps our clients to develop cost effective and targeted strategies to obtain successful resolutions of often complex claims. The Firm also has significant experience pursuing subrogation claims arising from Construction Defect situations.

DEFENSE OF MOTOR CARRIERS

Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor represents several self-insured Motor Carriers, and insurers devoted to coverage for Motor Carriers, in Louisiana State and Federal Courts. The Firm's representation ranges from defense of catastrophic losses to cargo related claims. As a result, its attorneys are knowledgeable of the difficulties faced by Motor Carriers in litigation filed against them and are aggressive with the defense of evaluating and determining which claims should be defended or settled. In addition to defense of catastrophic losses, the Firm regularly represents Motor Carriers on cargo damage claims. As a result, its attorneys are familiar with all federal statutes applicable to interstate carriers and, most importantly, the protections afforded by those federal statutes.

In conjunction with the Firm's representation of Motor Carriers, it has formed a Catastrophic Loss Response Team comprised of qualified attorneys and specialized vendors who can quickly and competently respond and deploy in the unfortunate event of a catastrophic loss in Louisiana. The Firm and its Catastrophic Loss Response Team is available to its Motor Carrier clients on a 24-hour basis.

ENVIRONMENTAL LITIGATION

Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor, LLC, regularly represents insurers, landowners and oil companies in environmental contamination cases. This practice includes the defense of “legacy” lawsuits alleging pollution damages from prior oilfield production activities, breaches of mineral leases and violations of the Louisiana Mineral Code; the defense of occupational exposure cases by employees of refineries and pipe cleaning companies as well as claims by residents residing in the adjoining neighborhoods; and the defense of claims by truckers and other transporters alleging exposure to naturally occurring radioactive materials (NORM), benzene and other hazardous products. The Firm works closely with the executives and in-house counsel of the companies it represents to ensure appropriate litigation strategy and efficiently defend against complex environmental matters.

INSURANCE COVERAGE

Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor focuses on litigation involving insurance coverage issues and regularly drafts insurance coverage opinions and advises insurance companies in coverage dispute actions, acting as Coverage Counsel for a number of insurers doing business in Louisiana. Louisiana is unique in that it is one of only two jurisdictions in the United States that provides third party claimants with a right of direct action against liability carriers. The Firm routinely represents insurers who are sued under Louisiana's Direct Action Statute, including Direct Action claims against insurers in litigation that involve professional liability, mass tort, toxic tort, class action, construction defect, environmental and bad faith claims, among others. Louisiana's Direct Action Statute provides insurers with an opportunity to address coverage issues in ongoing litigation between a claimant and an insured, as opposed to filing a separate Declaratory Judgment Action. The attorneys of the Firm have enjoyed great success in presenting fact issues to juries or judges during trial for resolution in order to apply those fact findings to the coverage issue in dispute in order for the Court to rule upon the coverage dispute. The Firm has extensive experience working with virtually every type of insurance policy utilized in the industry, including professional liability, commercial and personal automobile, general liability, employers liability, homeowners, builders risk, excess and umbrella policies, as well as manuscripted policies and endorsements.

INSURANCE DEFENSE

Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor is regularly retained by insurance companies to defend policy holders in a variety of litigation throughout the State of Louisiana in both state and federal courts. The Firm defends insureds in litigation ranging from cases involving issues of premises liability, products liability, maritime personal injury, commercial and personal lines automobile liability to class action and mass tort.

The Firm devotes a significant portion of its insurance defense practice to environmental litigation. Insurers have retained the Firm to represent oil companies, landowners, and other defendants in large scale environmental contamination cases, mass tort, toxic tort, class action, radiation, and environmental claims. Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor is routinely retained to defend insureds in “legacy” cases, wherein Louisiana landowners and lessors have filed suit against the former lessees and operators alleging a myriad of issues that arise as a result of oil field operations on their property.

MARITIME

The Firm's Maritime Section is overseen and managed by David M. Flotte and includes the handling of nearly every type of admiralty litigation and contract.

The Firm's attorneys have vast experience with litigated matters that include bodily injury claims involving Jones Act, Longshore and Harbor Workers Compensation Act, limitation of liability, seaman status, maintenance and cure, unseaworthiness, third party maritime tort, passenger claims, investigation and defense of vessel collisions and toxic releases arising from vessel and shipyard operations, and Defense Base Act claims. The Firm's marine property damage experience includes hull and cargo, docks, bridges, wharfs, loss of use and earnings.. From an environmental standpoint the Firm has handled pollution claims arising out of maritime activities including clean up and pursuit of third party liability under OPA 90 and defense of all charges (civil and criminal) under the Clean Water Act.

The Firm regularly prepares and analyzes maritime contracts, as well as litigating the terms of such contracts, including all types of charter agreements, master service agreements, affreightment contracts and cargo claims. Based upon their years of experience, the Firm's attorneys have developed a unique understanding of the terms and conditions that are unique to marine insurance policies and routinely represent both carriers and policy holders in claims that involve a wide range of coverages, including Hull and Machinery, Protection and Indemnity, Marine Employer Liability, Sue and Labor, Wreck Removal and General Liability.

The Firm routinely protects its client's rights through pursuing vessel arrests or seeking the release of vessels that have been wrongfully arrested, including obtaining Warrants of Attachment that arise from collision, towage liens, ship mortgages, other tort and liens, salvage liens, and vessel sales.

The Firm's maritime practice regularly takes its attorneys into the State Courts, Federal Courts and Administrative Tribunals in Louisiana, Texas, Missouri, Mississippi and Tennessee.

PREMISES LIABILITY

Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor routinely defends property owners in premises liability litigation throughout Louisiana. The Firm has significant experience applying the facts of premises liability claims to the requirements of Louisiana Revised Statute 9:2800.6 and Article 2317.1 of Louisiana's Civil Code. Those statutory and codal requirements can make what might appear to be a clear cut premises liability claim not only defensible but, in some cases, subject to dismissal by summary judgment. The Firm's attorneys have successfully obtained dismissal of premises liability cases by summary proceeding when the burden of proof has not been met and have also defeated premises liability claims at trial. The Firm's clients include owners and operators of retail establishments, restaurants, medical facilities, hotels, banks and numerous other commercial establishments. The Firm has developed relationships with the appropriate experts which, coupled with the years of experience of its attorneys, allows Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor to defend all premises liability claims in an efficient and pro-active manner.

PRODUCTS LIABILITY

Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor has represented both manufacturers and distributors in products liability litigation throughout the state of Louisiana in both State and Federal courts. The Firm has experience litigating issues involving design defects, construction and composition defects, failure to warn, breach of warranty, redhibition, and general negligence, as well as defenses to which a client is entitled under the Louisiana Products Liability Act, among others. The Firm's clients include manufacturers and sellers of a wide variety of industrial products and consumer products, including manufacturers of cell phones, home products and pharmaceutical products. The Firm has acted both as lead counsel as well as local counsel for large manufacturers of products in multi-district litigation and class actions. Its attorneys are experienced in complex products-liability litigation, including toxic-tort actions involving exposure to asbestos, chemicals, radiation and mold.

PROFESSIONAL LIABILITY

Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor has extensive experience defending professional liability claims against architects, engineers, insurance agents and brokers, pharmacists, as well as other professions. The defense of the professionals in the foregoing areas has allowed the Firm's attorneys to expand their knowledge of the fields of expertise in which these professionals practice their trades and to apply that knowledge to the overall defense of professional liability claims. One of the Firm's Partners, Ashley Inabnet, was a practicing architect for over 12 years before attending law school.

Although professional liability matters involve very fact specific issues, many such cases can be resolved in the early stages of litigation if factors that can give rise to early disposition, such as statutory preemption, are identified and fully explored. The Firm's attorneys have enjoyed great success in defending these types of claims by identifying such factors and taking steps to obtain dismissals of their clients where appropriate.

TOXIC TORT

Long before the Firm was formed, several of the Partners had a long history of defending toxic tort litigation, including claims involving long and short term exposure to asbestos containing products, silica, benzene and other hazardous chemicals, compounds and products. We have also defended numerous claims, from an individual and class action standpoint, that arise from alleged exposure to mold as well as naturally occurring radioactive materials.

The Firm represents a broad spectrum of clients, ranging from major manufacturing corporations and shipyards to small closely held family businesses. Our experience with both the law and science allows us to identify effective strategies for both the aggressive defense of claims and cost control of large dockets. The Firm's experience includes not only defending matters through all aspects of pre trial discovery and evaluation, but also through verdict by a jury following trial on the merits.

For over 30 years, David has focused his practice almost exclusively on maritime related issues. David regularly handles litigated matters that include bodily injury claims involving Jones Act, Longshore and Harbor Workers Compensation Act, limitation of liability, seaman status, maintenance and cure, unseaworthiness, third party maritime tort, passenger claims, investigation and defense of vessel collisions and toxic releases arising from vessel and shipyard operations, and Defense Base Act. David routinely handles marine property damage litigation involving hull and cargo, docks, bridges, wharfs, loss of use and earnings, contract of carriage under COGSA (package/CFU limitation) and the Harter Act. As maritime operations can often result in the release of contaminants, David has vast experience in handling pollution related claims, including handling of clean up and pursuit of third party liability under OPA 90 and defense of all charges (civil and criminal) under the Clean Water Act. A regular part of David's practice includes protecting client's rights through pursuing vessel arrests or seeking the release of vessels that have been wrongfully arrested. David's experience in this area includes obtaining Warrants of Attachment that arise from towage liens, ship mortgages, tort liens, salvage liens and vessel sales.

David's maritime practice includes preparing, analyzing, and revising maritime contracts, as well as litigating the terms of such contracts, including all types of charter agreements, master service agreements, affreightment contracts and cargo claims.

Through his vast maritime experience, David has acquired a great understanding of the terms and conditions that are unique to marine insurance policies and has represented both carriers and policy holders in claims that involve a wide range of coverages, including Hull and Machinery, Protection and Indemnity, Marine Employer Liability, Sue and Labor; Wreck Removal and General Liability.

The types of marine interests that David's practice has handled is wide ranging and includes A frame rigs, tow boats, dry cargo barges, tank barges, pilot boats, dock barges, deep draft dry cargo ships, pipe laying barges, spud barges for marine construction, crew boats, passenger vessels, casino boats, integrated towing units (notch tug and barge), pleasure boats, yachts, subsea divers, offshore jack up drilling rigs, lift boats, offshore supply boats, pipe laying barges, cargo elevators, cargo transfer terminals, docks and other marine structures.

David is admitted to practice in Louisiana, Texas and Missouri and his extensive maritime practice has admission on a pro hac vice basis in courts and administrative tribunals in Mississippi, Tennessee and Virginia.

Kevin practices in the areas of admiralty and maritime and insurance defense litigation.

Raised in Memphis, Tennessee, Kevin moved to Louisiana in 2010 to attend Tulane University Law School. During his time at law school, Kevin was a member of Tulane's Moot Court Board and served as the Moot Court Board's Chairperson of the Judicial Council in his third year. He also volunteered as a tutor in the law school's Academic Support Program helping to guide first year students through their initial coursework and exams. Kevin graduated law school magna cum laude in 2013. Prior to law school, Kevin attended Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas as a SMU Distinguished Scholar. At SMU, he studied political science and graduated in 2009 with Honors in Liberal Arts.

Kevin is admitted to practice in all Louisiana state courts, as well as federal courts for the Eastern, Middle, and Western Districts of Louisiana and the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

In his litigation practice, John has served as lead trial counsel in the areas of insurance coverage, banking defense, environmental defense, products liability actions and commercial disputes. He has successfully represented clients in jury trials and bench trials in the federal and state courts throughout Louisiana. Additionally, he has successfully represented clients in cases before the Louisiana Courts of Appeal, the Louisiana Supreme Court, and the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeal.

Banking and Financial Institutions: John has represented national and state banks in lender-liability suits, R.I.C.O actions, fraud and forgery claims, negligence actions, and checking and demand deposit lawsuits including those arising under the Louisiana Commercial Code, the U.C.C., and retail banking. His financial institution litigation also includes claims involving breach of contract and commercial transactions, as well as arbitration claims brought before FINRA, the NASD and AAA.

Insurance Coverage and Defense: John routinely represents insurers and carriers in a wide variety of insurance coverage disputes including bad faith suits, professional liability claims, class action litigation, Louisiana Direct Action claims, suits against insurance agents, declaratory judgment actions, and the representation of manufacturers and distributors in products liability cases.

Environmental Defense: John’s environmental practice involves the representation of insurers, oil companies, and landowners in large scale environmental contamination cases; the defense of insurers and insureds in “legacy” lawsuits claiming pollution from prior oilfield production activities; and the representation of insurers and insureds in mass environmental toxic-tort cases.

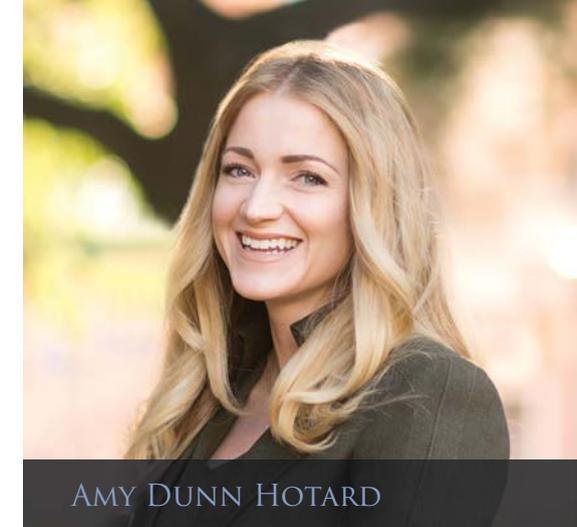

John was admitted to practice in Louisiana in 1986. Prior to co-founding Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor, LLC in 2004, John had been a partner at Sessions, Fishman & Nathan, LLP in New Orleans. He graduated Phi Beta Kappa and magna cum laude from the University of Virginia, and he graduated Order of the Coif and magna cum laude from the Tulane University School of Law in the top 5% of his class. He was a member of the Board of Editors of the Tulane Law Review from 1984 through 1986 and served as Notes and Comments Editor from 1985 through 1986. He wrote a case note on Federal Preemption that appeared in the Tulane Law Review. He has served on the Federal Bar Association’s sub-committee on federal rule changes. John is AV rated by Martindale-Hubbell.

Amy’s practice includes workers’ compensation defense at the state level and on a federal level under the LHWCA, defense of first and third party automobile and homeowners’ claims, premises liability defense, defense of personal injury claims in the transportation and trucking industry, subrogation, and oversight of workers’ compensation policy.

Amy is a graduate of Louisiana State University where she attended LSU Honors College obtaining a B.A. in Mass Communications with a minor in History after only three years. She received her Juris Doctorate and Bachelor of Civil Law from Louisiana State University’s Paul M. Hebert Law Center.

After being admitted to the Louisiana Bar, she began working for a commercial litigation and healthcare law firm in New Orleans concentrating in the areas of workers’ compensation defense, insurance defense, and general civil litigation. After several years at that firm, she was asked to join Salley, Hite, Mercer and Resor, LLC as an Associate. On January 1, 2015, Amy was named a Partner in the Firm.

Super Lawyers has named Amy a “Rising Star” in the field of workers’ compensation on more than one occasion. Amy is a member of the Louisiana State Bar Association, the Louisiana Association of Defense Counsel, and CLM. She is admitted to practice in Louisiana State and Federal Courts as well as the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

David P. Salley is a founding member of Salley, Hite, Mercer & Resor. He attended the University of Mississippi School of Law, where he was the Research Editor of the Mississippi Law Journal and the Chairman of the Moot Court Board. After graduation, David began his law practice with a focus on litigation. Within two years of being admitted to the Louisiana Bar, he tried his first case as Lead Counsel in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Louisiana. Recognizing the excitement of trial practice, David focused his law practice on litigation and has acted as Lead Counsel on almost 100 jury and bench trials.

David has developed an extensive litigation based practice focused primarily on representation of insurers and corporations involved in litigation in Louisiana State and Federal courts. He routinely handles cases and trials for clients on matters involving defense of professional liability claims, transportation-related claims, toxic-tort, mass-litigation claims, environmental exposure claims, cargo claims for interstate motor carriers, and claims arising from contractual disputes on government contracts. David has an active practice focused on insurance coverage litigation and since 2012 David has been designated as a Super Lawyer in the area of Insurance Coverage litigation. David acts as Coverage Counsel within the State of Louisiana for several insurance carriers.
